Lively Meeting

97 people attended the meeting at HTH Community Centre on Wednesday night.

The meeting was organised by Unified Saints. 11 Councillors were questioned by a sometimes angry audience. A full report from the meeting in next week's Independent.

ST HELENA MAGISTRATES' COURT

2nd January 2020

Cheryl Thomas (41) of Harris Flats, Jamestown, pleaded guilty to one charge of Careless Driving. She entered her plea at the earliest opportunity and was dealt with by way of a financial penalty of £60.00. She was disqualified from driving for 6 months and ordered to pay £15.00 costs.

Walter James Henry (67) of Trap Cott, pleaded guilty to one charge of driving over the prescribed limit and a charge of being in charge of a child in a public place whilst drunk. He entered his plea at the earliest opportunity and was dealt with by way of a Community Service Order for 80 hours for the driving offence and a conditional discharge for 12 months in respect of the second matter. He was disqualified from driving for 20 months and ordered to pay £15.00 costs.

Derek Bertram Henry (55) of Half Tree Hollow, pleaded guilty to one count of Indecent Exposure. He entered his plea at the earliest opportunity and was dealt with by way of a Community Service Order for 80 hours. He was also ordered to pay £15.00 costs.

3rd January 2020

Brian Joshua (52) of Bottomwoods, was convicted after trial to one matter of Harassment. He was dealt with by way of a Community Service Order for a period of 180 hours and made subject to a Restraining Order and £50.00 costs.

7th January 2020

Brian Joshua (52) of Bottomwoods, pleaded guilty to failing to provide a specimen of breath. He entered his plea at an early opportunity. He was dealt with by way of a fine in the sum of £60.0. He was also ordered to pay £15.00 costs and disqualified from driving for a period of 3 years.

Quarry stone destined to be transported by sea

A road linking the Donkey Plain quarry to the shore at Breakneck Valley is proposed for development so that quarried stone can be taken to Breakneck Valley and transported by sea instead of through Jamestown in heavy trucks. How the quarry stone is transferred from sea transport back to land for final delivery is not explained in either the report to the Land Control Development Authority or to Exco Members who will be giving the final decision on this development application on Tuesday. There is also no indication in either report that the excavated material is quarry waste intended to be dumped at sea.

The Heritage Society and the National Trust have objected to the development application as it stands because insufficient information is provided on how the historic defence wall at the Breakneck Valley shoreline will be protected. In fact, as the application now stands part of the historic wall would be demolished. The Society also point out the existing footpath down to Breakneck Valley may be of considerable archaeological significance because it was a well established 18th century route to the sea. They maintained an Environmental Impact Assessment (EIA) is needed.

The St Helena National Trust also raised objections and concerns about the Breakneck fortification wall and the unknown and unresearched impact on endemic invertebrates in this so far undisturbed area. The National Trust asked for a further assessment and for suitable measures to be put in place to limit the possibly significant damage.

After completing the usual screening process it was considered by the Chief Environment Officer that an EIA was not required while at the same time conceding there could be some environmental impact caused by the construction of the road.

As the road is to be an unmetalled private track sufficient for heavy lorries but not public use the report to Exco councillors supports the view that a construction method statement for the road should be sufficient together with a walk over of the route by the applicant together with specialist nature conservation professional to assess the impact on any endemic invertebrate species and other relevant environmental issues. At the same time any measures that could be taken to limit the possible damage, such as realignment of the road, should be identified.

The information paper to Exco members concedes there will be some environment damage caused by the construction of the road, "There is some adverse impact on the nature and heritage environment arising from this proposed development as much of this area has not been disturbed by development or land excavation work, however it is not considered to be significant when balanced with the potential environmental benefits likely with the removal of heavy goods vehicles from the main Jamestown area that transports material."

Throughout there appears to be insufficient information, as suggested by the Heritage Society, for a fully informed decision to be made. It is strange that an EIA is not considered necessary but the conditions attached to the recommended development permission include further environmental assessments. The Land Development Control Authority did not ask that the Chief Planning Officer obtain further information and then bring the application back for further consideration. Rather, it was left to the Chief Planning Officer to pursue concerns raised by the Authority and then take the application forward without any reference back. It will be interesting to see how Exco members approach this development application.

Editorial

New developments expected next week mean that when you are lowered into your grave you will not be able to spread your arms out as much as you might like to. The New Cemetery (Amendment) Rules 2020 mean the width of your final 'bed', and mine, is to be reduced from 4 feet 6 inches, as it is now, to 2 feet 5 inches. The revision of burial plot dimensions will be solemnly (or gravely) considered by Exco at their next meeting and it is very likely they will go with the new, slimmed down burial plot size because it means more burial plots can be allocated in cemeteries.

The information paper to Exco members explains in vivid Technicolor that the extension to the Dungeon cemetery can accommodate 1,000 burial plots under the existing 1953 cemetery rules. By changing the dimensions of each burial plot almost 2,000 can be fitted into the Dungeon cemetery extension. The space between each burial plot remains at 2 feet and the length of each plot increases by 6 inches to 7 feet; it is change in the more than generous width measurement that gives more bang for the burial buck. I just checked with a measuring tape, 2 feet 5 inches is good enough for me – I will not have enough room to turn over but I can stretch my legs.

I pulled a blog off the internet this week which gave the usual stuff about St Helena being a new and interesting destination for a holiday. The difference was the opening sentence, "Between worrying about Brexit and eating curry once a week, Saint Helenians could hardly be more British." It then goes on to say the main difference between the UK and St Helena is the 8,000 kilometres which separates them. There are many differences between modern Britain and today's St Helena but I find it strangely comforting that a visitor writing about the way of life here still points out the people of St Helena act and think like Brits. As happens in most parts of the world the US influence seems to become ever stronger and I was gaining the impression that the US influence was just a bit too strong here. Maybe, and hopefully, we are resisting it.

The blog based its story on an interview with Helena Bennett, Tourism Director. Helena told the reporter, "We are British, but you don't really notice it until something goes on in the UK like the Queen's Jubilee. Then you'll find we all break out into having a party here,"

As it happened I re-watched the 'Party at the Palace' DVD over Christmas. That was a pop concert in Her Majesty's back garden held as part of the Golden Jubilee celebrations in 2002. In two years time, God spare, the Queen will be celebrating what I think is called her Platinum Jubilee – 70 years on the throne. Will she have another pop concert in her back garden I wonder? Amazingly, only one of the performers at the 2002 Party at the Palace has departed this world, that's Joe Cocker. Tony Bennett who is a singer from even before my time is still performing at the some charity events at the age of 94. Others such as Mis-Teeq and Blue are still struggling on, in some 'never-say-die' form or other. S Club 7 continues without the 7, it's more like 3 now. Tom Jones will probably never die, just become a Zombie. Atomic Kitten, Will Young, The Corrs, they are all doing something still, somewhere. Would the Queen want them all back again in 2022, probably not.

What is certain is that Prime Minister Boris will want to make the biggest fuss possible about Her Majesty being 70 years on the throne. He will no doubt see it as a platinum opportunity to re-unite a disunited kingdom. If the Queen's reign cannot hold the Scots, Irish and Welsh with the English than no-one can. Johnson will probably get people to organise trade fairs and Expos as well in a bid to catch-up on the trade deals still lost after Brexit.

As far as St Helena is concerned, I think Helena Bennett should be put in charge of organising the Platinum Jubilee celebrations. At least one big event for every month of 2022 should do it.

Enjoy the weekend

New eco-friendly coffee plantation due to be approved on Tuesday

A development application for a new coffee plantation on a 27 acre site at Hunts Vale, at the head of Rural Retreat Gut, is likely to get the go-ahead when considered by Executive Council on Tuesday. The Land Development Control Authority has already recommended the development be approved and no contentious issues have been identified.

The development application submitted by Axel Oberem is for an eco-friendly coffee plantation based on a zero carbon emission energy management plan. The development includes two eco-lodges, two water storage ponds, a pump house and sheltered storage using ship's cargo containers.

The two eco-lodges will be for tourist accommodation. They are designed to be as energy efficient as possible with photovoltaic solar panels on mono-pitched roofs to convert light into electricity for use within the coffee plantation. Water supplies will be sourced from spring water on-site and large double glazed windows are designed to keep the house warm or cool depending on the season and to allow as much natural light as possible to reduce the need for electric light. Eco-lodge construction will include blocks made from expanded clay. Manufactured in Germany the Liaplan blocks have natural insulation qualities and moisture resistance.

The two water storage ponds will collect water which would otherwise drain away, eventually to the sea. The collected water is to be used on site to feed the coffee plants. The pump house will accommodate a water turbine pump which will be used to pump water from the lower pond to the upper pond. The pump will be powered by renewable photovoltaic energy.

The storage shelter will be constructed with steel framework and, like the eco-lodges, have a north facing mono-pitch roof with photovoltaic panels to generate renewable power. Within the shelter will be three 20 foot containers and one 40 foot container. The site chosen for the sheltered storage is enclosed on three sides by trees; the site was pushed out some years ago by a previous owner. Access to the site is already available and is close to the coffee plantation. The containers will be used to store coffee beans while open areas within the shelter will be used for storing equipment and processing the green bean to roasted bean.

Axel Oberem and his wife have been working on the development of Hunts Vale as a coffee plantation for some time. Already 3,500 coffee seedlings have been propagated and it is intended the plantation will eventually have 10,000 coffee bushes. As the proposed development is for a high value commodity where most of the produce will be exported the proposal is supported by several economic development policies and aims.

A Song Sung against Climate Changers

Creative St Helena was asked to be involved in a Global Climate Change Project called RESOLUTION; they did participate and joined many other countries worldwide. The project meant writing and producing a song encouraging all of us to get actively involved in reducing the ever increasing threat of climate change.

Teeny Lucy, Director of Creative St Helena said, "We were given a new song written by a platinum selling singer / songwriter to learn in a very short time and in 3 brief meetings, had learned it, worked out the harmonies, recorded the audio track and filmed drone footage at High Knoll Fort." She added, "The footage and videos were flown to the UK just before Christmas and were edited in London and are now ready to upload to YouTube and Share everywhere." The singers who got together to complete this project ranged from 14 years old to twenties, thirties and beyond! They are, Maria Francis, Lisa Joshua, James Fantom (+guitar), Megan Francis, Shanice Phillips, Abigail Yon, Shelby Bargo and Teeny Lucy (+piano).

Astronomers versus Satellites

It's a situation where one set of interests conflicts with another – and St Helena has an interest in both. Astronomers are warning that the thousands of communications satellites planned to be launched into low earth orbits will severely affect their ability to study the suns, stars, asteroids and the rest of the phenomena in space. The light reflected from the bright satellites obscures the visibility of stars and is disastrous for astronomers and star-gazers alike. With St Helena making slow but meaningful progress towards protecting our night sky from light pollution caused by artificial light at night this is very bad news.

On the other hand the Equiano cable connection and the financial benefits we hope to gain from it depends on the networks of communications satellites now being launched and the ground stations to be located in St Helena which bring the satellite communications to earth and transfers them to the fibre-optic Equiano cable. At the moment there are about 2,200 active satellites orbiting the Earth. In a few years time the number will leap to 12,000. It is reported UK communications company OneWeb is aiming to launch about 650 satellites but this could increase to 2,000 if there is enough customer demand. Apart from OneWeb, SpaceX and Amazon are just two of many satellite companies with plans to launch hundreds or thousands of satellites in the near future. OneWeb say they have already taken action to ensure their satellites are not too reflective and SpaceX say they are "actively working" to minimise the impact of their satellites on the night sky.

Seven Walker Cannon from Rotherham restored and displayed in St Helena

Now, the Walker Family Museum in Rotherham would like one back

Four preserved Walker cannon displayed outside the customs building. Rotherham, the home of the Walker Cannon, has two and now wants another Rotherham, Yorkshire, is the home of the once rich and famous Walker Family. In the 1740s Samuel Walker, the village schoolmaster, started a small iron foundry next to the farm where he lived. About 40 years later the business had grown so much one of the Walker family could afford to build Clifton Park, a large country house set in an extensive country park. The Walker Foundry was a main supplier to the government. Of the one hundred and five cannon on HMS Victory at the Battle of Trafalgar eighty were from the Walker Foundry which produced 22,000 cannon a year at its peak in the mid-1790s.

The house and grounds built by the Walker family is now in public ownership. The country house is now a museum; part of the museum is dedicated to the history of the Walker family and their foundry. To add to the Walker Collection the museum curators are searching for another cannon made at their foundry. It is reported the search has been going on for two years and the help of Prince Charles and the Royal Armouries has been sought with no success.

"The Walker family has gradually died out but these cannons are all over the world — Edinburgh Castle, the Tower of London, Australia, the Caribbean Islands," a museum spokesperson told the Rotherham Advertiser, adding, "Rotherham has only got two — one outside the Town Hall and one at Riverside House — but I want one at Clifton Park. Before I fall off my perch, I want a cannon." It's important because we have only got two in Rotherham and I think we deserve more as they were all manufactured in Rotherham."

In addition to the four at what is historically called the East Bastion, near the entrance to the controlled port area at the wharf, there are two at the main passenger entrance to the airport and a seventh lies at the back of the Museum of St Helena awaiting a new purpose in life.

Walker Cannon number seven – ready to grace a St Helenian historic location

All the cannon have been restored and the locations for them organised by Edward Baldwin who enjoys the epithet 'Gun Man' due to the extensive work he has completed with the historically important cannon and guns around the Island. The Independent is informed there is no willingness to send one of our Walker Cannon back to Rotherham. Faulty cannon were often used for other purposes such as street bollards. The Rotherham Museum's public appeal for one more Walker Cannon included the suggestion that one or two could be being used as ornaments in someone's garden. The feeling in St Helena is that the appeal for another canon should focus on Rotherham's keen gardeners.

Nine months since last flight cancellation

There has mercifully been a ten months gap between the flight cancellation this week and the previous cancellation in early March last year. In the first 12 months of operation there were seven cancellations with cancelled flights being a total of 25 days late. During the second 12 month period there were two cancellations causing a total of 10 days delay.

Tuesday's cancellation comes three months into the third 12 month period (14th October 2019 to 13th October 2020) so there is still a 9 month delay free period to go if reliability figures are to improve. A tough one as the 2020 winter period is included.

Greetings and Thanks

J. Patsy Flagg would like to thank most sincerely the many friends and relatives who so kindly sent Christmas cards and letters from overseas and on Island. Your greetings were very much appreciated and were heart-warming.

To all the family members and various friends who so kindly sent Christmas gifts, thank you for the wonderful array of items, so thoughtfully chosen. I treasure them all.

I wish you all God's Blessings for the year ahead, may 2020 bring peace, joy, happiness, good health and prosperity.

Putting suppliers in touch with buyers

The St Helena and Ascension Island governments announced this week there will be no air freight charges for fruit, vegetables and eggs exported from St Helena to Ascension for six months starting in February. The announcement also stated “Should businesses on St Helena wish to supply retailers on Ascension they must contact retailers directly.”

To help St Helena suppliers contact possible Ascension buyers the Independent obtained a list of possible Ascension buyers from Edward Whitton, the SHG Agronomist. The contact details are:-

A&Ps	Amelia Knipe	amelia.knipe@ascension.gov.ac
Babcock	Johnny Stroud	dhfcs asi.babcock@atlantis.co.ac
Chandlery	Natalie Sim	manager@chandleryminimarket.co.ac
Encompass	Rick Lutman	Rick.Lutman@encompass.co.ac
Glamour Plus	Casey Lawrence	Casey.Lawrence@ascension.gov.ac
JAMS	Andrew and Syrena Ellick	Dreams.bbc@atlantis.co.ac
NAAFI	Liz Hendricks	LHendriks@naafi.co.uk / 40700@NAAFI.co.uk
RAF Base	Wing Commander John Kane	BFSAl-ASCBBaseCdr@mod.uk

Saints	Sue Arms-Lawrence	SaintsClub@cwimail.co.ac
USAF Base	Major Vinnie Bongioanni	vincent.bongioanni@us.af.mil

While businesses in St Helena interested in exporting fresh produce to Ascension are encouraged to make contact with any or all of the possible Ascension buyers listed, the contact details shown in bold are thought to be the most likely customers.

Any other Ascension businesses or organisations who are interested in buying St Helena fresh produce can contact the Independent during the early part of next week and we will add the contact details to the list above and publish the details next Friday.

To close the circle in putting suppliers and buyers in touch with each other, any St Helenian supplier of fruit, vegetables or eggs who is interested in supplying an Ascension retail business can give us contact details and we will publish them in next Friday's Independent.

The deadline for contact details is 12 noon on Wednesday 15th January.

Your Opinion Counts

THE CONSTITUENT

The following letter was written on behalf of the people of St Helena.

Dear Rt Hon Mitchell,

Following the recent general election in the United Kingdom, it was pleasing to see you re-elected once again as the Member of Parliament for Sutton Coldfield. I take this opportunity to congratulate you on behalf of the people of St Helena who value your continued support for the island as a serving MP.

On December 19th I was fortunate to see you interviewed on TV by the BBC Hardtalk host Stephen Sackur. Your deliberations were engaging.

Following the interview, I reflected on matters relating to St Helena that you and I discussed in the UK during the 2017 Westminster Seminar and also on your 2018 visit to St Helena and the inspiration you conveyed during your meeting with all elected representatives.

In the interests of taking full advantage of every opportunity to obtain assistance and support from within the House of Commons for the people of St Helena, I would like to bring the following to your attention:

St Helena now has air access but it is most unfortunate that the people of St Helena are still struggling to contend with social and economic stagnation. Whereas the people of St Helena, along with sustained support from the United Kingdom, should be building on the huge investment into air access with enthusiasm, Saints are disillusioned, demoralised and leaving St Helena to better themselves.

It is hoped that the recent financial aid commitment from the UK government to an Economic Development Investment Programme will soon help reverse the negative impacts imposed by the absence of capital programme funding over the last three years.

However, it is a huge concern that after DFID, being fully aware of both the difficulty and the importance of attracting Saints back to St Helena, made a special effort to do so leading up to air access, but then cut off capital programme funding to St Helena after building the airport.

The refusal to provide financial aid in the form of capital programme funding, for some three years, is irresponsible to say the least. Consequently, a British Overseas Territory that is heavily reliant on financial aid from the United Kingdom for development was always going to gradually have to face the increasing challenges of social and economic stagnation and disintegration. The UK government in effect failed to capitalise on its £300m investment in St Helena for ongoing social and economic development of the island's community.

To help me provide you with a clearer understanding of my concerns and aspirations, particularly in relation to convincing DFID to allocate adequate future budgetary aid for St Helena, I have attached three documents.

The elected representatives' commitment, dedication and loyalty to constituents to bring about change for the better are challenging. Over the first two years of our tenure, elected members have focused attention on a new direction at council level. The shift to work in the very best interests of the island and maximise successful outcomes will be realised by the wider community as we continue to make progress. However, creditable progress will be reliant on sustained adequate financial aid and support from the United Kingdom. The level of funding and progress will help determine the level of incentive and inspiration that will have a positive impact on the wider community. If the incentive and inspiration is sufficient and there is clear evidence of sustained social and economic improvements throughout the community then Saints will be encouraged to return home (again) and contribute to the development of St Helena. However, DFID must fully understand that the United Kingdom cannot provide assistance for St Helena to advance and then fail to provide sustained adequate financial aid and thereby undermine the progress achieved.

Consequently, socially and economically such short-sighted actions will once again force the island to stumble to a standstill and eventually slide backwards. This irresponsible decision-making by DFID must be addressed, and local elected representatives must be allowed more realistic and practical autonomy in determining the affairs and the future of St Helena.

Albeit individually or collectively, I believe the voices and efforts of local Elected members are far too weak to carry our message to the UK Government for serious consideration. Therefore, I trust you will kindly carry the concerns and aspirations to the UK Government on behalf of the people of St Helena.

The people of St Helena are indeed resourceful and have the potential to be consistently successful and to become that 'vibrant and flourishing community'.

With reference to the United Kingdom's 2012 White Paper on the Overseas Territories, I humbly ask that you and others within the UK Parliament will work to secure adequate sustained budgetary assistance that is so desperately required by the people of St Helena from the United Kingdom.

All very best wishes to you for the New Year; supported by a quote from a recent message to all MPs from Her Majesty the Queen: "I pray that the blessings of the Almighty God will rest upon your counsels."

With kind regards,

Cyril Leo

WHAT DID SAINT FM Do for St Helena last year?

It has been a record year for Saint FM and as we look forward to a challenging new year ahead we would like to take a little time to look back at our performance during 2019. We asked ourselves: What did Saint FM do for St Helena last year? Apart from the fact that on-island we covered a wide variety of issues, challenges and changes for St Helena, investment, tourism, politics, air access, people, places, problems, success, failures and sporting events, we simply have to share with you our on-line success which is a major milestone for any organisation on St Helena!

Who listened to Saint FM last year?

Although we cannot accurately produce listening audience figures for those who listened locally via our local FM transmitters here on St Helena, Ascension and the Falkland Islands we can show of statistical data that identifies who we reached out to across our global audience.

Saint FM's live online audio stream reached a whopping total of 528083 listeners in 224 countries. By comparison, in 2018 we reached 217,173 listeners in 208 countries, this represents an impressive 143% year on year increase.

By far these figures are eye watering, but based on these figures even if we only captured our audience interest for an average period of 5 or 10 minutes this is a result for any organisation.

Fascinating Facts.

Key changes and achievements in 2019.

Saint FM made some key changes to improve the reach to our audience in 2019.

- From feedback from our listeners, it clearly showed in 2019 a requirement to push the services of Saint FM into the mobile and portable device space. Saint FM was the first media organisation to launch a mobile and portable device-streaming app. We were pleased to announce that we had launched our new android app on July 12th 2019 that is now compatible with all Android mobile and tablet devices.
- We made several upgrades to our website over the last year and one of the key changes that has become a popular function is our listen again page <http://www.saint.fm/listen-again/> which offers our audience the option to listen again to some of our lively discussions that was previously aired live.
- A new and improved online audio streaming piece of hardware was installed into the network at the station last year, this was a great step forward and improvement for online and app listeners as this piece of functionally offered a degree of automation and redundancy for unscheduled power failures and auto restart streaming management.
- We introduced the station's live audio streaming to smart speakers and devices across the Amazon and Google cloud services making Saint FM easily available to end users of smart speakers and other supported devices that can connect to any of these services e.g. Amazon's Alexa devices google home speakers etc.
- We again mastered our live outside broadcast coverage last year covering some key St Helena events both on and off St Helena. We covered the governors inauguration ceremony in May of 2019 which incidentally was one of our most listened to live events both on the day and on our website. We covered another live visitor arrival at The St Helena airport. We transmitted a live coverage from the Saints Reading sports in Berkshire UK and again in November 2019 not to forget the St Helena football tournament in Wales and we also kept you up to speed with the outside broadcasts live from the world travel market in London UK. We would like to thank Jonathan Clingham (Web master - Reach Back St Helena) for compiling the data. - Here's to another successful year ahead - Thank you for joining us.

CLOSED SEASON FOR SPEARFISHING

1ST JANUARY 2020 TO 31ST MARCH 2020

DURING THIS PERIOD SPEARFISHING IS NOT ALLOWED AT ANY TIME OR PLACE IN ST HELENA'S WATERS.

The Spear Guns (Control) Ordinance states that during a closed season, no person shall have a spear gun in his possession on or within twenty meters of any tidal water or upon any beach or foreshore or while swimming or while in any vessel.

During this time most fish are at the spawning stage and it is therefore necessary to put measures in place to allow marine life a chance to breed and to grow into sustainable resources. The aim of the controlled season is not to stop people from enjoying the sea and its life, but to respect our oceans and its resources.

Expression of Interest Re-Design and Maintenance of SHG's International Recruitment website

SHG is seeking expressions of interest from interested parties for the re-design and maintenance of their international recruitment website, which is a platform aimed at providing information about vacancies and St Helena to international candidates. The aim will be to create a site that contains the most up-to-date and useful information about the island to potential candidates and also where we post all international vacancies.

Expressions of interest will need to include:

- The design and maintenance of site and content (uploading and removing adverts)
- Creation of content about St Helena and refreshing as required so that it relevant and up-to-date

Interested parties will need to be able to demonstrate their capability and experience in providing this service. Expression of interest should be sent to Meliza Lawrence, Human Resources Advisor, Corporate Human Resources (meliza.lawrence@sainthelena.gov.sh) by 24 January 2020.

Does anyone remember, or have stories about, or photos of

AUNTIE LOU

who lived in a caravan on the Run in Upper Jamestown until her death in 1981.

I am researching her husband's wider family and ancestors in the UK and would be interested in any information or stories about Auntie Lou, however seemingly trivial. ST HELENA POLICE NEW RECRUITS PASSING OUT CEREMONY

In the midst of the holiday festivities, on Saturday, 21 December 2019, a presentation and reception was held at Plantation House to award and honour five newly recruited Police Constables who successfully passed their Initial Police Training.

The five officers receiving certificates were Police Constables Brittney Coleman, Patsy Green, Charlene John, Genaro Mendoza, and Gerarda Gosina Pitlo.

The presentations were made by His Excellency, Governor Dr Philip Rushbrook, and Acting Chief of Police, David Price, with the Officers' family and friends in attendance.

The eight-week Initial Police Training course covered elements of Law, Personal Safety Training, First Aid, Safeguarding, Taser, Vulnerable Persons Awareness, Interviewing, File Preparation, Probation and the Overseas Territories Regional Criminal Intelligence System (OTRCIS - the crime recording, intelligence and incident management computer system).

The Police Constables have since commenced their operational duties.

A further presentation was also made to particular staff within the Police Directorate who received commendations as follows:

- Police Sergeant, Mark Morrison (not present), Police Constable, Ruby-Jade Stevens, Detective Constable, Jody Balme, and Police Controller, Joyce Greentree, for the way in which they responded to and dealt with an incident involving a violent male who attacked officers with a large knife and attempted to escape custody
- Police Sergeant, Mark Coombe, for his outstanding achievement in the delivery of training and development to officers and staff of the Police Directorate
- Community Psychiatric Nurse, Ian Rummery (not present), for his outstanding contribution in supporting individuals with Mental Health issues (joint award by the Police and Health Directorates).

Registered No 38 under the companies Ordinance – Registered No C00011 under the Charities Ordinance

2019 – THE YEAR OF THE LOWEST ANNUAL RAINFALL ON ST HELENA RESERVOIR LEVELS GRADUALLY DECREASE

2019 has officially been recorded as the year with the lowest annual rainfall on St Helena since records began in 1977, with a total of just 286.2mm recorded for the entire year (see chart attached).

This lack of rainfall has contributed to the Island's current water shortage, which remains serious. Reservoir levels have gradually decreased recently with stored water now at around 35%. Despite the increase in population on-Island over the busy festive period, water usage, although still higher than 1000 cubic metres, did not reach excessive rates and the public is thanked for their efforts. Regardless, to ensure we preserve our Island's precious resource, consumption levels must remain as low as possible.

Remember that we are currently under a hosepipe ban following Connect Saint Helena's enforcement of (CSH) Island-wide water restrictions in June 2019.

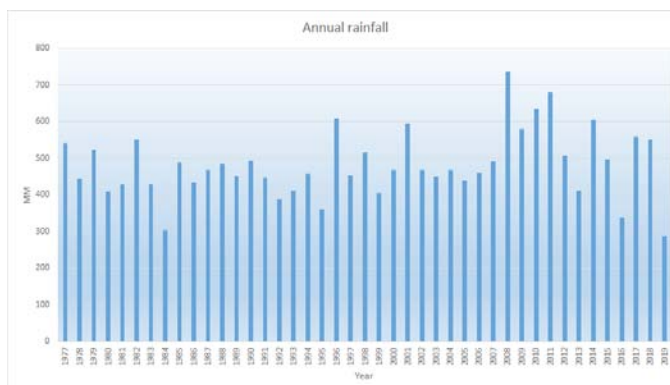

CSH has also noticed that those who have been issued exemptions from the water restrictions, mostly for agricultural use, have use water responsibly. Agricultural exemption limits are informed by the Agriculture & Natural Resources Division (ANRD) and exceeding these may hinder being granted further exemptions.

It is everyone's responsibility to take great care in using our water and consumers are continually urged to reduce consumption wherever possible. St Helena residents, businesses and people who use water for agricultural purposes are also urged to exercise great care and restraint when using water.

In the interim, CSH will continue pumping from Chubb's Spring and Hutt's Gate as well as from Fisher's Valley and Warren's Gut. The yield from Chubb's Spring has decreased recently with a current yield of around 60 cubic metres per day as opposed to a period when CSH was extracting around 180 cubic metres daily.

Every drop counts, every action counts – save water now to be safe later 2020 is not looking good for us Manchester United fans as we have not yet managed to win a game or score a goal. We have suffered defeats against Arsenal and Man City and drew 0-0 with Wolves.

To make things even more depressing for us is that Liverpool seems to be getting better and better under Jurgen Klopp.

Klopp has turned Liverpool into a relentless force; he managed to turn ordinary players into world beaters. Even his kids manage to beat Everton in the FA Cup.

It is 99.9% certain that Liverpool will pick up their first league title in 30 seasons. We United fans should be looking to move out of St Helena as soon as possible. Come May it is going to be impossible for us to live here 'banter free'.

Last team to win the top flight for Liverpool (1990)

Thirty years ago, Liverpool clinched the First Division title with two games to spare. At Anfield, in front of 37,758, Kenny Dalglish's side came from behind to beat Queens Park Rangers 2-1. Fittingly, the goals came courtesy of John Barnes and Ian Rush – between them they scored thirty-nine times (50% of Liverpool's overall total) and it was their clinical performances that pushed the club to a 18th championship.

Others; more than played their part, Peter Beardsley chipped in with ten. The Israeli international Ronny Rosenthal, signed in March 1990 on loan from Standard Liege, grabbed a hat-trick on his debut and added four more goals before season's end. Elsewhere, Alan Hansen and Steve McMahon, along with Barnes and Beardsley, were named to the 1989/1990 PFA Team of the Year.

A few weeks later, Liverpool beat Derby at Anfield and was presented with the trophy after the game.

John Barnes was Liverpool's stand out player. By 1990, Barnes was unplayable. In 34 league starts, he scored 22 goals. The season prior, he had racked up just eight. In many ways, 1990 was Barnes' peak, before injuries wore him down. The turbulent ending to the 1991 season affected many at the club and though Barnes scored a hatful of goals again, it wasn't enough to claim another title. The following season, he suffered an Achilles injury – an ailment he has subsequently identified as having greatly inhibited his performances from there on. The frustrations of both his run of injuries and the lack of success under Souness ensured a difficult few years, especially as he adapted to a central midfield role.

Barnes would stay at the club until 1997, heavily involved in mentoring a conveyor belt of impressive youngsters. He left to join Newcastle and spent two seasons at St. James' Park, eventually frozen out by Ruud Gullit. He wound down his career with Charlton, making a dozen appearances.

Not sure what is left in store for us under the leadership of Ole Gunnar Solskjaer. Will Manchester United hierarchy give him the much need money to strengthen the team remains to be seen? I wouldn't be surprise if he gets the sack before the transfer window closes at the end of this month.

The match against Liverpool on the 19th could be pivotal in the Norwegian's future.

Personally I think it is time to get rid of some dead wood; De Gea; Pogba and probably even Lingard. Maybe it is also time to part company with Jones; Matic and Mata.

United was terrible in their 3-1 loss against City in the EFL Cup semi-final first leg.

Man City's loss to Wolves in December surely put them out of the race to retain their league title. Pep would have his sight firmly fix on both the domestic and European trophies. They already have one foot in the Final of the EFL Cup.

Pep and City won the domestic treble last season.

Despite losing 4-0 against Liverpool the 2016 League champions Leicester City remain strong favourites to qualify for the Champions League. Since the loss against Liverpool they went on to beat West ham and Newcastle.

Both Spurs and Chelsea had indifferent results during the festive period. Chelsea beat Spurs 2-0 then went on to lose 2-0 against Southampton and only pick up a point against Brighton. Spurs also loss against Southampton and drew with Norwich.

Arsenal under new manager Mikel Arteta loss 2-1 against Chelsea on his return to the Emirates but bounce back to dominate and beat Manchester United on New Year's day.

Round 22 of the EPL will kick off on Friday night at 8pm when Sheffield United host West Ham.

Nicholas Pepe scoring for Arsenal in their 2-0 against Manchester United

The early game on Saturday will see Mikel Arteta take his Gunners' side to play Crystal Palace at Selhurst Park. In the 3pm games Chelsea will host Burnley; Everton will play Brighton, Southampton will travel to the midlands to play Leicester, Manchester United will host Norwich and Wolves play at home against Newcastle.

The late match on Saturday is the game of the weekend as the league leaders Liverpool travel to London to play Tottenham Hotspur.

On Sunday Bournemouth host Watford at 2pm and Villa will play the Champions Man City at 4.30pm.

In midweek we will see a host of FA Cup 3rd round replay fixtures.

2020 Cricket News

The St Helena Cricket Association's 35 over league continued and the first matches of 2020 were played last Saturday and Sunday.

On Saturday, Lions came out on top in a close encounter with Western A Mustangs after Dan Marlow took 5/46 for Lions and Nathan Knipe scored 101* for Mustangs. Lions kept their composure during the run chase and were able to overhaul the required target of 226.

On Sunday Jamestown Heat scored 316 against Western Woodpeckers. Dax Richards top-scored with 90. Chris Owen looked threatening during the run chase and he struck 78. However Jason Thomas ripped through the rest of their top order to return bowling figures of 4/39. Woodpeckers finished on 192.

The final match of the weekend saw Levelwood Allstarz continue with winning ways and inflict a second consecutive defeat upon Royal Challengers. Levelwood successfully defended 157 following outstanding performances in the field from both sides.

Golf Report for Sunday 5th January 2020

The first golf competition of the year took place on Sunday 5th January 2020 from 12:00hrs. Cloudy conditions kept the temperature low and provided conducive conditions for the golfers. The low turn out of golfers didn't affect the upbeat mood of those who turned up. At the end of the 18 holes Mr Tony Green playing off handicap 13 emerged tops on the leaderboard scoring a nett 69 after a consistent score in both the first and second nine holes. In second place with handicap 15 Mr Douglas Augustus scored a birdie on the second and a total of 6 pars to end up with nett 70. There was no two ball pool winner. Congratulations to the two prize winners. The prizes were presented by the Captain Bramwell who is acting games manager for January.

Sunday 12th January the club will host a par 3 competition. Registration is ongoing. To register, add your name to the list in the club house when the club house is open, leave your name on the club voice machine 24421 or let us know through our Facebook page @SHGC.org.sh Check out the programme of competitions for January to March 2020.

A Bite of the Juicy Apple

Over the Hudson we glided in a Norwegian Airway's Dreamliner. A very comfortable flight, these planes are so quiet on takeoff and landing. The six and a bit hour journey was coming to an end giant skyline of New York well in view. After much preparation, I was embarking on the other leg of my journey of exploration outside of conventional living. Norwegian Airlines is a budget airline and a very good one folks....I recommend them.

The initial part of my stay is in Queens, just one stop on the express train to Grand Central (seen this one enough times, with film-stars jumping over barriers chasing one another with guns etc). I was nervous about the transport and grid system but actually, a week gone, its absolutely fine and I think, a lot easier than London. The Subway staff are very helpful. I love walking, so I walk everywhere. Traffic Cops yell at you if you pedestrian cross when the lights aren't a walking man ...not happened to me yet. The steam from the subway via the man-hole covers and grills reminds me again of the movies. Traffic beep one another excessively. They don't care what the hold up is, if the car in front doesn't move they will continue beeping until they do. It makes me giggle as someone who no longer needs to drive. Not driving has certainly been healthier for my temperament. I haven't got in a cab as I find the subway just excellent. I'd say it's a little more grotty than London's underground, the trains aren't as frequent but I love the internet coverage in the subway for free and the 24 hour services which run. NYC really is the city that never sleeps.

With just street and avenue numbers for the most part, I am getting used to avenue blocks being wider and taking a little longer to walk than streets. I use Midtown Manhattan as my central point and then meander outwards from there.

On my second day, I was fortunate to come upon the United Nations Slavery Memorial and see St Helena listed there too. It's wonderful to travel and see our little island featuring in some of the most prominent locations. We are well and truly on the world map now and not just because of Napoleon. I'm getting lots of questions about 'my accent' (Australia / South Africa) and the logos on my clothing and bag. I'll let you know how I get on with talking about my experiences on a wider platform.

New York is very expensive. I would even go as far to say that it is bit more expensive than London because you have to tip handsomely here. If you don't you get well and truly frowned upon. Twenty percent of the bill for food and a dollar or two for a drink (rule of thumb I've been told is one drink up to ten dollars, a minimum of a dollar tip). You do however get an exceptional service here, even in the very basic of venues. Having worked in hospitality before, it's tough not being appreciated with tips. The food is so good this end too. The jury's still out for me at the moment as to whether it beats the food in London as London does have some exquisite eateries, pop up cafes etc

Renting a place is also super expensive with up to six months rent in some instances up front. You won't get a decent apartment (studio or one bed) for less than two thousand plus dollars a month and this is pre-empting a not so sought after neighbourhood. Just chatting to Bjorn (a communications guy for Heineken) he expressed how things have changed since the 2008 crash and how a handful of investors have blown living costs through the roof here. A '1' bed dump' in the West Village will also set you back four thousand plus dollars per month in rent.

I'm glad I made the decision not to study here, its a wonderful holiday destination but unless you are well established with a good job / trade, life can be quite challenging. At this point in my life, it has to be a little simpler. Yet, there are many who came to 'The Big Apple' looking for a better life and now having established themselves and their communities, this city benefits too from the wonders of their culture. Hard working and wiling to do jobs many aren't willing to do.

One evening when I felt exhausted and popped the TV on to watch Forest Gump ("Run Forest! Run!"), fifty percent of the time was taken up by adverts. My view is that marketing in this country is way out of control and consumers get intruded upon wherever they go but on a much grander scale than the UK. Every time you turn on the radio, TV or even surf the net you get swamped by medicinal adverts and so on. It means watching a movie on TV takes almost an additional hour. Apparently internet streaming is heaviest because of this.

I expected bone rattling cold (not sure why - it might be something to do with being told the City was -8 degrees Celsius the week before). It's been very mild and the big winter coat and thermals that I bought have been useful only on a few occasions. I am under no illusions that January and February will set the record straight. Canada with potentially -30 degrees should be a 'blast'.

A Bite of the Juicy Apple

On a clear day, I walked to Hunter's Point and was able to capture the skyline in all of its magnificence. The Chrysler Building, The Empire State Building, The Freedom Tower, The United Nations. It's a view I'll never forget wherever I travel. I'll do some rooftop visits once it gets a bit quieter here. Even though I'm a tourist, I've never enjoyed crowds like this unless I'm sitting in a big window and watching the mayhem from there. My friend from Tooting visited with her family for a few days and I was able to catch up with them which was lovely. It's not often you travel somewhere and connect unplanned with friends in another country.

The Freedom Tower, Memorial Fountain, and general re-development at Ground Zero speaks volumes about a city that will never forget a tragedy that rocked the world and changed security, as we know it. The water that plummets into the basin of the memorial fountain represented for me the tears that have been shed for the senseless loss of loved ones, for a world ripped apart by hatred and fanaticism. The names of all who died cut into the surrounding outer rim. Yet, I also think about the cleansing water making way for unification under the umbrella of forgiveness. The more I see of the world, the more I realise that without individual contributions to peace, kindness, compassion and generosity, we remain united in concern. Here is a memorial denouncing terrorism. I wonder how many memorials are not in place for the wrongs that continue by Western Countries?

Greta Thunberg may be seen as 'extreme' but the point that I agree with that she makes is "we say, we promise and we fail to deliver time and again". Lip service, because the profits outweigh the concerns. People criticise the extinction people for halting process, leaving a mess when they leave etcwhat about the mess that we first worlders continue to leave in countries where locals are the ones who suffer badly? Because of our greed. Inconvenience you, but I'll not be inconvenienced. When did greed and profit margins overtake our sense of compassion for our planet and our fellow man?

In having a conversation with my friends in Sydney and Melbourne about the Fire Works for New Year's they feel the fireworks should not have happened in Sydney in respect of what is currently happening with the forest fires. Scott Morrison (Australia's PM) was called a few things but what is commonly thought is that money was the driver in continuing on with the ceremony. I suppose what can one expect from a man who goes on annual leave when his country is in turmoil?

I hail all of the work being done on our tiny island in the name of preservation. I can return home to a gem because the people who have been there for twenty years whilst I've been gallivanting about have worked hard to take care of it for future generations. Thank you.

The live jazz, blues bands are superb but be careful to remember that unlike the UK, most establishments here don't pay them so when that tip bucket comes round, put $5 - $10 dollars in there if you don't fancy being berated. I like the little tables that you can sit at to watch these performances, it creates a lovely intimate atmosphere.

I am going to see a show, a film, a basketball match in January minus the hoards. They build skyscrapers over here as quickly as we build 3 bedroom homes on the island. 'Giants' which keep you looking directly up to the sky in order to see their summit. London has The Shard, Gherkin, Walkie Talkie Building etc but these bad boys are on another level. Everything is just so much bigger in this City. It really makes me stop and stare with my mouth wide open. Apartments and family homes rise to some six storeys and it all looks so picturesque with the little Christmas decorations on the front door. The stairwells on the outsides of the buildings are so typical of NYC because stairwells weren't included internally properly in the old days.

The external art on buildings is also a wonder to see. Once again, it's big, colourful and bold. I love the colours of the buildings side by side especially in the East village. Bright but rustic reds, greens, blues and yellows. Oh I did go down to where the sitcom Friends was filmed. I can't remember which floor it was on but it is just a random building with no real plaque signifying that it was The Friends Apartment.

As I wonder the East and West Villages, I find little gems. I've joined the 11th Street Bar (official LFC bar) so I'll be watching most matches there. Carraghers, whilst a huge tourist attraction lacks intimacy and the drinks are also decidedly more expensive than the smaller out of mid-town venues. My friend being a 'Liverpool snub' now sings Allez Allez Allez in an American accent and it is quite funny when they do the "and we come from Liverpool" bit. However, she could make fun of me too, being an international supporter. What I remind her is that Liverpool is a huge international club which belongs to everyone not just by geographical standing. Merchandise and tickets bought, benefits local workers and industries too. So there! :)

What's so lovely about my visit is that I am not swept along by time, cramming in every tourist attraction. This is why I wanted to do this trip folks, because for me, it's not about rushing in and out. It's about having meaningful conversations, blending into society and really feeling. I wouldn't get that if I rushed in and out. I spent so many years with Day Lewis rushing from town to town in England. Only stopping to have a dinner and sleep and then off again. This is travelling on a different platform and I love and applaud it. Save pennies and go and 'be there' somewhere.

What resolutions do we have for the New Year? 2020 is the turn of another decade. I spent 2000 in London, underneath Big Ben. This year, I will spend it on some rooftop overlooking Manhattan. Life really is inspiring. If you have a dream folks, take the small steps. When people laugh at you and criticise your dreams and aspirations, don't look to prove them wrong, look to prove you right, in your own time. My life is not about rushing to and fro anymore, it's about contact, impact and taking the good and bad and rolling it into one fun existence. I have plans for 'tomorrow' but I will not allow them to cloud my 'today'.

This year was very tough for me away from my family, one of the toughest years to date. I think my visit home earlier this year made it difficult. Yet, once again we were blessed to meet a Canadian family in the Cock & Bull off 5th Avenue and they invited us to dine with them. It was a truly wonderful experience. I never expect such kindness in a big city like NYC, but there you go. Thank you to the team at Saint FM for their hard work in connecting families over the festive. What would the island be like without this amazing media? Thank you to Lord Ashcroft. You've allowed the team to bring smiles, tears of happiness, laughter and communication to some people who otherwise would be sitting in a room without TValone. Our society grows stronger and closer through Saint FM.

The year ahead may have some really difficult times but there will also be a reason to embark on that tomorrow. It's your choice how you choose to not let events grind you down but actually see each day as another chance. I want to stay positive, mindful and kind. I plan to leave all the woes and hard feelings of 2019 in 2019. I'm bound to make more mistakes in 2020 but they cannot be heaped upon the mistakes of 2019, otherwise, my cart will get full very quickly. Where I have allowed people to offend me resulting in a poor reaction from me, I put this behind me too. There will be no grudges carried into 2020. No one has upset me enough to allow them to steal my positivity and energy in 2020 too.

God Bless you and thank you for reading my articles this past year.

Thank You

The family of the late Martha Elizabeth Stroud who passed away on the 21 November 2019, would like to thank everyone who supported the family during her illness whilst at home before and after her passing. Thank you to Roy and his team for the funeral arrangements, Colin and Davina for the donation of the beautiful wreaths, and Marnie for the beautiful cross and floral arrangements. To Bishop Dale for the funeral service, Lacosta for reading the eulogy, Joy for reading the lesson and messages, and to Daniel and Donny for the music at the graveside. To Solomon's for the funeral service sheets. Thanks also to all who gave cards of condolences and messages of support and to all who paid tribute to Martha by attending the funeral. 'Martha is gone from our lives but will live on in our hearts forever. Time passes, memories stay. Loved and remembered every day. What she left behind is not what is engraved in stone, but what is woven into the lives of others.'

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

Dear Sir/Madam,

During the Christmas period ESH erected a temporary shelter in front of the market place in Jamestown, for the market day fair.

As a concerned citizen who care about the elderly and infirmed. I would like to ask this question.

Could the shelter be erected again in a permanent basis, thus allowing old, young and infirmed people to be able to shelter from the scorching hot sun.

Yours sincerely
A Concerned Saint

Bubbles Christmas Party

"Bubbles" concluded their festive activities with a party for the children of Sandy Bay on Tuesday 17th December 2019. The party was well attended and enjoyed by all.

Chairperson (Mrs. Molly Fowler) welcomed all and gave a brief outline of the work Bubbles do. Dr. Pricilla MacDaniel and Mrs. Nicky Adams was also in attendance as 'judges'.

After an introduction all children were put into appropriate age groups and all began to create a Christmas Hat with materials provided. These included pom-poms, tissue and crepe paper, sparkly gems (much enjoyed by the girls) ribbons etc. There were some great creations and the judges had difficulty in deciding who had created the best hat in each group.

After the hat competition it was time for lunch. Thanks are extended to Mrs. Gavie Williams who cooked lunch consisting of tuna pasta, sausages, chicken legs and fries followed by ice cream. All enjoyed lunch, some having second helpings. Then it was time to run off some of those calories. Towards the end of the day we were honoured by the appearance of Santa walking towards the centre with a sack of presents. Well done and thanks are extended to Santa who made his way on foot to present each child with a present. How far had he walked? Santa would not tell us. At about 5pm. an exhausted but happy group of children departed for home.

Chairperson would like to express her thanks to all committee members who helped in any way with the party, to the two judges who did a wonderful job, Mrs Gavie Williams who cooked a delicious lunch, to Santa who walked with his sack of presents and to those parents and children who helped to tidy up afterwards.

"Bubbles" extend greetings to all for a happy, healthy 2020 and we look forward to your support in our future activities. (chairperson of Bubbles)

We had the pleasure of being invited to a Christmas party hosted by the charity Bubbles at the Sandy Bay Community Centre on Tuesday 17th December 2019. We are new to Sandy Bay and it was a wonderful welcome for our four young children to be invited. The organisers had clearly worked hard to put on a fun, crafty and creative Christmas party that catered for all ages. The theme of the party was creativity so the first activity was to design and make a Christmas hat for yourself. The emphasis was on using your head and not technology so no phones or tablets were allowed. There was an array of sequins, ribbons, glitter and much more. A lovely meal was laid on with plenty of food for all and then a special guest came. Santa of course to spread Christmas cheer and give gifts to each child. Fun and laughter could be heard throughout the party and the children left happy and blessed.

A huge thank you is extended to the Bubbles charity who worked so hard to make this happen.

From James and Hannah Herne.
